Fire. Hot wheels

▶ Firefighters examined the charred remains of a van that someone allegedly torched in Center City Thursday afternoon.

Bomber torches trio of parked vehicles

Three cars burned in a parking lot at 15th and Bainbridge Thursday. A witness claimed that a man threw an incendiary device over the fence — setting the vehicles on fire — and then proceeded to run down the street to set another when police caught him. A police spokeswoman could not confirm the arrest.

Renowned firm helms SEPTA's fare upgrade

Ambler engineering company has worked on transit systems across country ◐ SEPTA signed them five years, $9 million ◐ Entire collection overhaul cost upward of $100 million

SEPTA took a significant step in ushering in a new fare system on Thursday as its board of directors approved a $9.1 million contract with an Ambler firm for support services for the new system.

LTK Engineering Services will serve as a consultant for the long-delayed, highly touted fare system, for which SEPTA hopes to select a vendor in September. The $100 million fare system will allow customers to pay with smart cards, debit cards and other contactless technology — eliminating tokens and paper transfers. Implementation is expected to take a few years.

Industry experts call LTK one of the best, having worked with agencies across the country to bring transit systems into the 21st century. SEPTA is one of the last major agencies to do so.

"They have long-term experience in new payment technology over the history of their firm. They're actually supporting some of the largest open-payment initiatives, such as Washington, D.C.," said John McGee, SEPTA's chief officer of New Payment Technology.

The contract is for five years starting in August. In addition to new fare tech, LTK has provided consulting for two separate light rail projects in Minnesota.

"They've always met our demands for timeliness, and they're very efficient," said Sheri Gingerich, deputy chief operations officer for Metro Transit in Minnesota. "I have no complaints with their work."

Fattal will have day in Iranian court

The families of Elkins Park native Josh Fattal and his friend Shane Bauer are holding a rally Friday outside the Iranian Mission in New York City to raise awareness of the two Americans' two-year anniversary of imprisonment in the Middle Eastern country.

Sunday is not only the anniversary, it's also the biggest day of their imprisonment because Fattal and Bauer are expected to finally have their day in court, Fattal's brother Alex told Metro on Thursday. The trial has been delayed several times already.

"We're on the edge of our seats," Alex Fattal said. "I think it'll go ahead and that gives us hope. If the court is independent and impartial as they've been saying all along, they'll definitely find them innocent — because they are."

Three cheers for liquor laws

◐ Flurry of liquor bills would shake up booze rules that date to 1930s ◐ Republicans in power see money, choice

Pennsylvania's arcane liquor laws could see some of the first reform since the 1930s, most notably with a bill introduced by House Majority Leader Mike Turzai, R-Allegheny, to privatize liquor stores. A series of public hearings on the matter will be held across the state in September, including in Philadelphia.

"We've had the most movement in the nine years I've been here," said Rep. John Payne, R-Dauphin, of the House Liquor Control Committee. "It used to be if you got a liquor bill in the House, they put 100 amendments on there and it never got to the Senate. Now, we've been moving a lot of bills right over."

WHAT WOULD NEW LAW MEAN TO BOOZE BUYERS?
WWW.METRO.US/PHL

"There is a desire by members to expand and modernize our current system," said Committee Chairman John Taylor, R-Phila. "We're a little more bullish than some of liquor community, which in the past has been on the control side. We want to strike a balance between control and making things easier for consumers."

Turzai testified before the committee Wednesday in support of the bill. "The government is supposed to serve the people, not serve them alcohol," he said.

"I don't know if we need to privatize state stores, but we certainly need to change the way we're operating, because sales are going up and profits are going down," Payne said. "If you're selling more and making less, there's something wrong."

ALEX WIGGLESWORTH
awigglesworth@metro.us

Happier days (and hours)?

The liquor laws are flowing these days. Gov. Corbett is expected to sign a bill enabling more flexibility surrounding happy hours. Bars will still have a weekly allotment of 14 happy hours, but they will be allowed to use four hours a day instead of two.

The bill also allows catering companies to serve alcohol off-site. "That was our big win," Christie said.

Hearings were also held on a bill that would allow direct shipment of wine to consumers. ● METRO/AW

Chris Christie: How healthy is his political future?

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie was admitted to the hospital yesterday after struggling to breathe on his way to a bill-signing in Hillsborough, N.J.

The governor, 48, who suffers from asthma and has not been shy in publicly discussing his weight battles, was taken to the hospital "out of an abundance of caution," his spokesman said.

But the scare caused some to reflect on how Christie's health — and more poignantly, his weight — might be a strike against him on the national stage as a possible presidential candidate.

"These are not trivial concerns," said David Birdsell, dean of Baruch College's School of Public Affairs. "Campaigning for president is physically grueling. Even the most energetic people find it difficult — the volume of travel, to go with so little sleep."

Some may not think the GOP heavyweight has the vigor for the nation's top office, Birdsell said.

"Rightly or wrongly, significant weight problems are often seen as indications of underlying ill health," Birdsell said.

Candidates know fitness is important, said Randall Miller, a political science professor at Saint Joseph's University in Philadelphia. "Presidents play to the idea and give out annual physicals that show they are physically fit."

Miller said that when Christie sheds significant pounds, it will be a sign he's interested in higher office.

"He'll want to trim down a bit, to convey the sense of self-mastery," he said.

ALISON BOWEN
alison.bowen@metro.us

Besides weight

Three reasons Chris Christie won't consider a run for president till 2016, according to political science professor Randall Miller:

1. He needs to bolster his list of accomplishments as New Jersey governor.
2. Christie should finish a successful two terms as GOP governor in a Democratic state.
3. It's better that he face a different field with no incumbent.

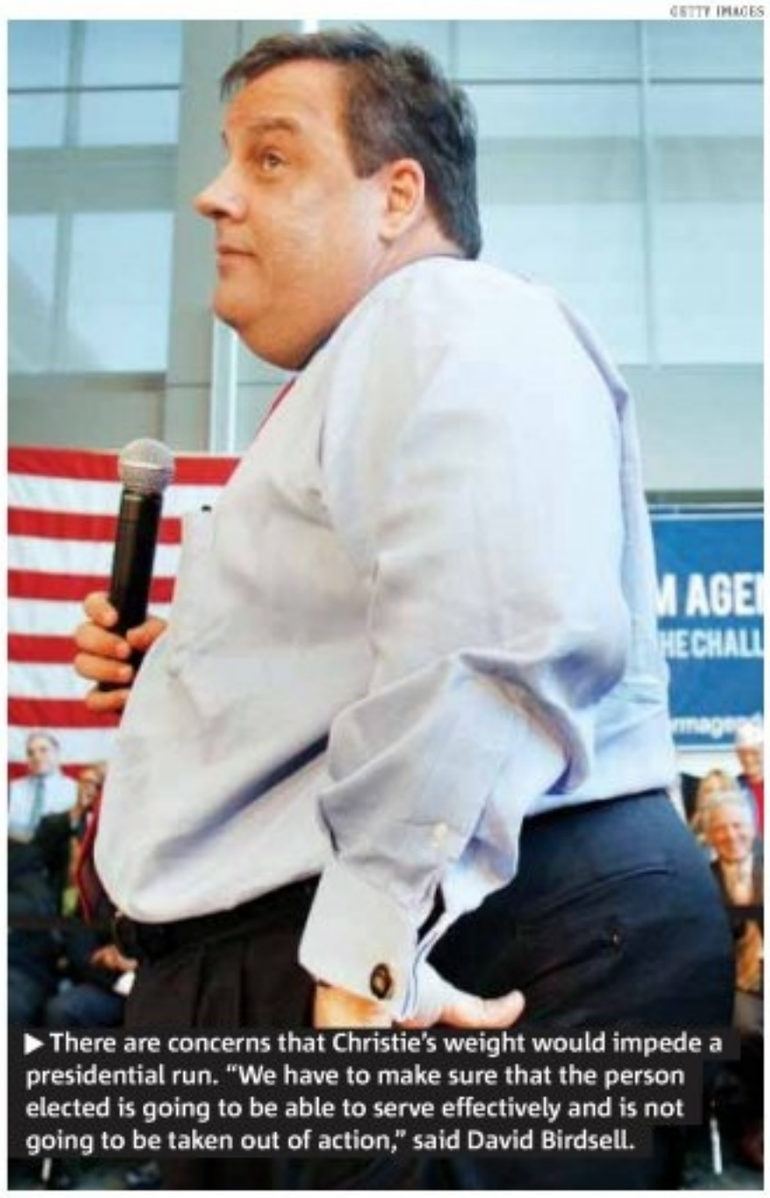
Heavyweight history

The last time America elected a portly president was William Howard Taft. "It's not coincidental that that was an age before television," Birdsell said. "Since television, we've not elected a heavy man to office."

GETTY IMAGES



▶ There are concerns that Christie's weight would impede a presidential run. "We have to make sure that the person elected is going to be able to serve effectively and is not going to be taken out of action," said David Birdsell.

POLITICIANS SUPERSIZING DEBT DEBATE

You have to hand it to Mayor McCheese. Although he's been out of office for years, he still knows how to work the polls.

I mention it because I suspect he was the mastermind behind the headline-grabbing move this week to add apples to Happy Meals, ease up on the fries and blunt the gnashing teeth of some McDonald's detractors.

In a public relations coup, the golden arches gang rolled out full-page advertisements in newspapers saying, in effect: We get it. You're no longer impressed by the billions of hamburgers we've sold, and you're tired of puffing like steam engines every time you tie your shoes. You want us to lay off the lard.

If only Washington could be so efficient.

"Welcome to the Capitol Hill Drive-Thru, would you like to try our new Immigration Policy/Gay Marriage combo?"

"Uh, ok. How long will it take?"

"Forever."

"Hmmm. How about an order of Bipartisanship with a side of Accountability?"

"Sorry. Fresh out."

"By the way, the Health Care Reform Frittatas I ordered recently seemed a little skimpy."

"Hey, pal, we're doing what we can."

"Then just give me a quick Debt Ceiling Deal salad."

"Yeah. About that ... "

CNN = POLITICS

Quoted

"No matter how many voters say they want more cooperation, the big political players plow right ahead — pushing a steady diet of partisan warfare."

Will Americans swallow this burger?

The goals of business and of government are admittedly different, yet you would think that each has at least some need to respond to the public. After all, McDonald's faces a re-election of sorts every day. If they don't deliver what people are after, their constituents will toddle off to Wendy's, Burger King or somewhere else. So if people want more apples and fewer fries, that's what they sell. Heck, if demand for vegetables went wild, I'm sure we'd see McCarrots in a heartbeat. Ideology is not on the menu.

Washington, however, is a like a restaurant that can't decide if it is cooking burgers or pizza — and refuses to acknowledge that the public is hungry for chicken. No matter how many voters say they want more cooperation and compromise, the big political players plow right ahead pushing a steady diet of bickering, partisan warfare and the special sauce of scare tactics.

Sure, they can always find someone to blame for the latest disconnect, but this restaurant seems to keep going downhill, no matter how many times the management changes.

The return of the supergroup

Mega boy bands, multigenerational and multigenre projects featuring classic rock royalty? What is going on here?

At first glance, Mick Jagger, New Kids on the Block and Ben Harper may not appear to have much in common, but in fact, they have lately been making music bigger than their own. All three have recently joined supergroups, bands comprising members from other already established acts.

"Music has gotten so compartmentalized and put into genres," says guitarist Dave Stewart, who is best known as the guitarist for the Eurythmics, and now as part of SuperHeavy, a supergroup that includes him, Mick Jagger, Joss Stone, Damian Marley and A.R. Rahman. "Mick was saying we'll go into the iTunes library as 'unclassifiable.'"

Quoted

"Everybody's got to check their egos at the door."

DAVE STEWART, ON HOW TO MAKE A SUPERGROUP WORK

FRANK W. OCKENFELS 3

▶ SuperHeavy are slated to release their debut album in September.

Paul Levinson, professor of communication and media studies at Fordham University, says putting dominant personalities from various groups will always be exciting for audiences.

"Fans very often love one or two members of a group more than the others, and when those members from different groups get together and form one supergroup, it's almost irresistible," he says.

Stewart says one element that makes SuperHeavy work is that the members come from such diverse backgrounds. But how about if you form a supergroup based on acts who are influenced by each other?

Metro spoke with Lou Pearlman, founder of the Backstreet Boys. Currently serving up to 25 years in a Texas prison for running a Ponzi scheme that denied investors of $300 million, he seemed happy to talk.

"Backstreet Boys and New Kids on the Block — that was a marriage made in heaven," he says. "Backstreet Boys tailored themselves to the New Kids' style when I was helping to get it all together. … Not in every group does everybody shine to be, say, the heartthrob, but there's always one, the quirky one, or there's one that's the very musically talented one or the great singer or things like that, and you take those key people, put them together and join it and you forge a new group — and that's how you make a supergroup."

Stewart says there's one important rule when you're a part of a supergroup.

"Everybody's got to check their egos at the door," he says. "That's partly why people like it, because it's like, 'Oh good. I don't have to be in charge.'"

Smurf Smurf

COLUMBIA PICTURES

▶ If you bring pizza, you can totally crash at Metro, little guy.

Most children's movie characters are objectively annoying to adults, but "The Smurfs" may be the first to make that annoyingness a stated part of the film itself. As their accidental human guardian, Neil Patrick Harris spends much of the film complaining about the little blue creatures squatting at his place. After all, who wouldn't be a little ticked off about a bunch of miniature blue guys who sang insipid songs and shoehorned the word "Smurf" into every sentence — especially if they kept trying to teach you lessons?

If you go

'The Smurfs'
Director: Raja Gosnell
Stars: Hank Azaria, Neil Patrick Harris, Jayma Mays
Rating: PG Grade: ●●○○○

The Smurfs are in Harris' Manhattan apartment ostensibly because of a magical portal that's transplanted them from their world to our own, but really because sending your characters to New York is just what you do in kids movies when you don't want to send them to a high school. Following the cerulean creatures through the portal is the evil sorcerer Gargamel (Hank Azaria), who wants to collect their essence as fuel for his dark magic. As they tend to, colorful hijinx ensue. The ones for kids involve Gargamel's cat, the ones for adults involve Harris' job — marketing for a cosmetics company. The adults get the short end of the stick.

The humans give committed performances, but the Smurfs themselves are mostly interchangeable. (Is it even possible to have a favorite Smurf? They're basically a hive mind.) It's tempting to wonder why the film was made, until you get to the scenes where the Smurfs stand around admiring the brand-name billboards in Times Square, or when the movie stops so Harris and the blue guys can play Rock Band for what feels like 10 minutes. Then you have your answer.

Cowboys, aliens and not much else

Director Jon Favreau's genre mash-up features an all-star cast and an interesting premise But once the title is established, it goes on sci-fi/Western auto-pilot

COLUMBIA PICTURES

Yippee-ki-yi-yay-zzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzz.

'Cowboys & Aliens'
Director: Jon Favreau
Stars: Daniel Craig, Harrison Ford, Olivia Wilde
Rating: PG-13
Grade: ●●●○○

"Cowboys & Aliens" is a movie about cowboys and aliens, and anyone walking in unaware will be pleased to find there are plenty of both. Sadly, there's also not much of anything else.

Daniel Craig stars as Jake Lonergan, an amnesiac drifter who awakes in the middle of the desert with a strange alien weapon attached to his arm. As this is partially a Western, he finds himself in a dusty frontier town in need of protection, first from the forces of greedy cattle magnate Col. Dolarhyde (Harrison Ford) and then from a mysterious fleet of alien spacecraft that snatches townsfolk out of the sky. Why do they do this? Well, one, because it's summer, but also because they want our gold.

The film plays like all concerned turned on autopilot once they had the title locked in. Jon Favreau assembled an all-star cast, but for much of the first half the script can't figure out what to do with them, working under the impression that adding aliens to stock Western situations would be enough.

The cowboys and the aliens do eventually fight each other, in a rousing action set-piece that gives plenty of fine little character touches to the former and a delightfully Cronenbergian design to the latter.

True to its word, the movie gives you what it says it will, but it's entirely uninterested in doing anything more.

Gosling is not your dancing monkey

- He doesn't want to improv — or talk about improv
- Why he signed on to 'Crazy, Stupid, Love' anyway

In an interviewing style that references De Niro's tight-lipped, one-word answers or Bob Dylan's absurd responses, it's never easy to pin down Ryan Gosling. His evasiveness could be interpreted either as arrogance or shyness or a combination of both, but while he promoted his latest film, the romantic comedy "Crazy, Stupid, Love," the "Notebook" star was forced to talk about himself and, unfortunately for him, dating.

So much has been said about casting you in a comedic role. Do you think you're funny?
Yes. I'm just trying to convince you of that.

That's it? Just yes?
Uhh ... you want more? It's not good enough. I guess I'm not funny. I'll work on it. I don't know how to answer that.

This project shows off your improv skills. Are there any projects you're interested in that would allow you to do more of that?
No. I don't want to improv. They make me because they get bored. They're like, be funnier. Make something up. Entertain us. Dance, monkey.

Would you host "Saturday Night Live"?
I'm too scared. It took me a lot to get up the guts to do this.

What was scary about doing "Crazy, Stupid, Love"?
I'd never done a comedy before, so that was scary. I did it because I love Steve Carell. I think he's the best. When I first moved to Los Angeles, I did a pilot and I was 17. I had a small part and so did Steve. He was so funny that I would go to the set to watch him work. One time the boom guy had to throw down his mic and have a laugh attack in the corner.

Ryan Gosling claims to not be nearly so smooth in real life. We'd take our chances.

Did Steve Carell remember working with you?
No. But I went for a meeting with him. I thought I had it in the bag because we worked together. He didn't remember.

Convenient then that you get to slap him many times in this film.
He likes to get slapped.

Your character in the film, Jacob, is really good at picking up ladies. Can you relate?
Not really. I don't know if anyone can. He's kind of like Bugs Bunny. I relate more to Steve's character.

So are you shy around women?
I don't know how to answer that. They come up to me and then they're disappointed that I'm not Ryan Reynolds.

The sorcerer's rock

Just because the movies are done doesn't mean Harry and the Potters are hanging up their robes

For millions of dedicated muggles around the world, "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2" marked the end of an era. No more books, after all, means no more movies. But what will that mean for brothers Paul and Joe DeGeorge, the frontmen of the original wizard-rock band, Harry and the Potters?

"We'll keep going," says Paul.

Performing mostly in public libraries and bookstores across the U.S., the brothers have been playing on an almost daily basis this summer, and they're not going to let the end of the film installments slow them down after nine years. Because although Harry's journey is over, his story continues to attract and inspire an entirely new set of fans.

"The best part is seeing 7-, 8-year-old kids at our shows screaming back every word in our face, up front and singing along," Paul says. "Harry Potter sort of reached a new generation where there's parents with young kids, and now they're kind of indoctrinating their children early on and bringing them to these shows fully dressed up. It's just a really cool feeling." LYNNE CARTY

Butler caught in the act with 'Red Rocks' album

'It was a big deal to play there for us,' says leader of Aussie jam band John Butler Trio Group fell in love with the space more than the legacy

Legendary artists like U2, Dave Matthews Band and Stevie Nicks have all released live albums from shows they played at the historic Red Rocks amphitheatre in Colorado, but that's not why the John Butler Trio decided to put out their recent "Live at Red Rocks" CD/DVD package.

"It was a big deal to play there for us," says frontman John Butler. "We wanted to capture that moment in time, because it's such an iconic venue. And if it was good enough, we wanted to share it with all of our fans."

The Trio's 2010 concert there instantly became a career benchmark for the Australia-based jam band as their biggest headlining show to date. Butler says it was the venue's natural acoustics and visual uniqueness that attracted him — not the big names that had already recorded there.

"It's a no-brainer that at some stage you should record a live album at Red Rocks," Butler says of Colorado's majestic amphitheatre. "The other recordings are definitely inspiring moments in time, but even if they didn't exist we still would have done it."

While JBT was not trying to follow in anyone's footsteps with their "Red Rocks," this isn't to say that other bands do not influence his music.

In fact, Butler routinely incorporates different styles into his own music, refusing to settle on just one genre.

"I feel like the rhythms are all related, and they all can get along, they all can dance together," he says. "So I can't just pick a genre. I want to play all the styles I love."

Rolling with the muse

Writing on the road, John Butler can't necessarily predict when and where the proverbial muse will appear. But when it does, he takes full advantage.

▶ "It's such a strange and wild little beast that I don't really understand," Butler says. "All I know is that I have a deep respect for it. And I just try to do the best when it comes to me. A song is not really mine — I try to stay humble to that."

An inside look at the famed Playboy Mansion

It's difficult to cover content on the Playboy Channel in a family newspaper such as Metro. But when duty calls in the form of an invitation to attend the Playboy Mansion in honor of the network's "TV For 2" programming, well, that's an assignment too good to pass up.

While Janice Dickinson, John Salley, "America's Next Top Model" winner/Playboy model Adrianne Curry and former "The Amazing Race" contestant/Playboy model Jaime Edmondson were spotted at the party, the mansion itself was the real star. Secrets I discovered at Hef's humble abode:

The Bunnies change, the decor doesn't:
Journalists were greeted by two Bunnies wearing the iconic corset and bunny tail, setting the scene for grounds that don't appear to have changed much since the swinging '60s — a tiki theme and strong wood tones rule the decor outdoors. Guests duck through numerous stone archways and tunnels (nice innuendo, Hef) to the infamous (and very hot, muggy and terrifying for germaphobes) Grotto; the game room featuring numerous Playboy-themed pinball machines and a mirrored "nap room" with a bed that seems to be made with the same comforter the Rat Pack may have rested upon; and animal sanctuaries full of monkeys, birds and, yes, fuzzy little bunnies.

DOROTHY ROBINSON'S WORD BLOG

When the floor turns squishy, don't be alarmed:
Stepping into the Grotto, I nearly lost my balance when the floor suddenly sank underneath me. "That's a mattress," my tour guide, Miss August 2004 Pilar Lastra, explained. "For when you want to take a nap." Of course.

There was another "napping floor" in an annex off of the game room, too, which took the guise of the entire floor. That room didn't bother with furniture; just pillows and the requisite mirrors adorned the space.

PAUL ARCHULETA/FILMMAGIC

Hef? He's keeping mum:
What better place to get the real story behind the recent war of words between Hugh Hefner and Crystal Harris than the Playboy Mansion? After spying the Playboy mogul peering out at his guests from a front window, I put on my investigative journalist hat and prepared to get some scoop. Sadly, Hef declined to comment — probably because it was a lifeless stand-in. If the real Hefner made an appearance, he managed to allude his TV critic guests.

Talking points

Richards: Pseudo lesbian

Denise Richards has teased that she had a lesbian affair with a fellow celebrity, though she draws the line at naming names. "I just met her through friends and work and stuff," Richards tells Howard Stern during an interview while promoting her new memoir. "I was just curious. We were curious. She was a girly-girl. She's beautiful. You would know who she is."

Richards

Tim Gunn takes on Hillary

Tim Gunn doesn't mince words when it comes to the fashion sense of Secretary of State Hillary Clinton. "Why must she dress that way?" the "Project Runway" mentor tells George Lopez. "I think she's confused about her gender [with] all these big, baggy menswear tailored pantsuits." Despite his criticisms, though, Gunn still appreciates Clinton's work: "I have great respect for her intellect and her tenacity and for what she does for our country in her governmental role," he says. "I just wish she could send a stronger message about American fashion."

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

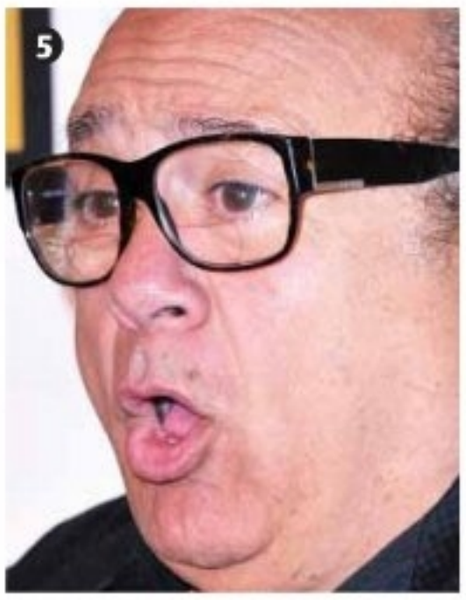
Is ScarJo next?

Scarlett Johansson is the latest celebrity to catch the eye of the military, as Sgt. Dustin L. Williams has invited the actress to the Marine Corps Ball. Sadly, though, the "Avengers" star will be too busy with work to attend. "I feel incredibly honored to have been invited to the Marine Corps Ball," Johansson says in a statement to Zap2It. "Sgt. Williams: Unfortunately, due to prior commitments, I will not be able to attend the Ball with you this year — but I am sending you a case of Moet and Chandon with gratitude." Both Mila Kunis and Justin Timberlake have already accepted invitations, while Betty White politely declined. The Marine Corps Ball will be held Nov. 10.



And now, a ridiculous roundup of photos of celebrities with their mouths open

SUNDAY, JULY 31, NOON-5PM

6th Annual Car Show and Street Festival on East Passyunk Avenue

This weekend thousands of visitors will be strolling East Passyunk Avenue for its Sixth Annual Car Show and Street Festival, formerly known as the DooWop. The festival will be held on Sunday, July 31 (rain date: Sunday, August 7), from noon to 5pm, on East Passyunk Avenue between Broad and Dickinson Streets in South Philadelphia.

While many will be drawn to the Avenue to listen to eight live bands playing along the strip over nine hours, shop from local crafters and car-inspired specialty vendors, or to grab a bite to eat and a cold beer, for some this show is all about the cars – and with over 140 muscle, classic 50's, antique, modified and custom painted cars, trucks and motorcycles lining a 5-block stretch of the Avenue, they should have no problem tracking down some of their favorites and discovering some new ones.

"It's really quite a sight to behold 5 city blocks of cars, trucks and motorcycles in every color imaginable," said Renee Gilinger, East Passyunk Avenue Business Improvement District's Executive Director. "I'm always blown away by the amount of time and energy folks put into their vehicles, with everything from fuchsia fur-lined trunks and seats to hand-painted landscapes and pin-up girls. It's really fun to talk to the owners about their inspiration and they are always happy to oblige."

The festival is FREE for attendees. There is a $15 fee for cars to register and all registration for cars is the day of the event. Cars should enter East Passyunk Avenue from Broad Street and it is advised that they arrive between 9am and noon to ensure that there is space.

Newly added this year, the festival will also include staggered live music along the Avenue, including local singer/songwriter Rebecca Way at East Passyunk and 13th Street from noon-2pm, Sinatra singer Steve Ritrozato from the City Rhythm Orchestra inside of Stogie Joe's at East Passyunk and Moore from noon-3pm, reggae band Nico and the Lion's Paw at the intersection of East Passyunk and 12th Street from 12:30-2:30pm, DJ Linz&Mars at the Fountain from 1-4pm, Captain Kin playing modern alternative rock and The Open Road playing alt-Country between Broad and Mifflin from 2-4:30pm, the Fountain Blues Band will be playing some good old fashioned rock n' roll with a blues edge between Taster and Morris from 2:30-4:30pm, and Krash Kourse will be outside of Stogie Joe's from 3-6pm.

In addition to East Passyunk's many boutiques and salons, visiting vendors will set up along the Avenue, with shopping options ranging from car memorabilia and accessories to a classic vintage photo booth hosted by Frame Fatale and sand art and face painting for the kids.

In conjunction with the festival, Nice Things Handmade is bringing the Bang!Boom!CRAFT! Show back to the newly-restored Fountain at East Passyunk Avenue and Tasker Street. This juried craft show will feature local artisans and their hand-made crafts, clothing, jewelry, accessories, and artwork.

"Nice Things Handmade is proud to present Bang!Boom!CRAFT!," remarked Elissa Kara, the shop's proprietor. "We will have over 30 independent local artists, including Jay McCarroll, Rogue Theory, Girls Can Tell, Bird Queen Designs, and Nicole Rae Styer, just to name a few. Get ready to check out some crafty crafters and hot rod cars!"

Chevrolet will be on site at East Passyunk and Morris Street offering free ride & drives of four of their vehicles, including the 2011 Camaro Coupe, Camaro Convertible, Corvette, and even the brand-new Volt, Chevrolet's electric vehicle that can also use gas if needed. The Volt was named the 2011 Green Car of the Year by the Green Car Journal, the first electric car ever to win the award. They will also raffle off four week-long loan vehicles and all proceeds will benefit East Passyunk's greening program. And if driving isn't your cup of tea, they'll have lots of Chevy swag to hand out!

East Passyunk Avenue's award-winning restaurants will be serving special street food and summertime beverages

East Passyunk Avenue is home to over 150 independently-owned shops and restaurants, offering an excellent opportunity to stretch your legs and take a stroll up the Avenue. Featured in both the New York Times Travel section and the most recent National Geographic Traveler magazine, East Passyunk is receiving national attention for its independent boutiques and eateries, with many of its restaurants featuring local and sustainable ingredients and many boutiques offering hand-made one-of-a-kind clothing.

For visitors who aren't registering cars, the Avenue is easily accessible by several SEPTA bus routes, including the C and the 23 buses, and is only 1-2 blocks from the Snyder and Tasker-Morris subway stops. If you are arriving by car and can't find on-street parking, there is an affordable parking lot in St. Agnes Hospital at Broad and McKean Streets.

Live from TCA: At home with Maura Isles

TNT

▶ Angie Harmon, Sasha Alexander and Lorraine Bracco star in "Rizzoli & Isles."

In Season 2 of "Rizzoli & Isles," viewers finally get to spend some time with forensic pathologist Maura Isles (Sasha Alexander) at home. That's partially thanks to the divorce of Angela Rizzoli (Lorraine Bracco) — the brash mama of her unlikely best friend, homicide detective Jane Rizzoli (Angie Harmon) — who has moved into the guest room.

Production designer Bruce Miller invited us over to Maura's place on the first day of the TCA press tour for a look at the character's gorgeous pad.

"It's all very skeletal," Miller says of the furniture and artwork in both Maura's home and office. "The images I thought were really interesting were fluids. And the shells are the beauty part of dead things. She deals with skeletons and she brings the same thing to her house."

Alexander was happy to put her own touches on the space: "I thought this was someone who was well-traveled, who has a quirky and eclectic eye and who has picked things up along her journeys," she says.

We'd love to suffer like this

RE: "WHY SHOULD THE RICH SUFFER?": Kelly Donnoe states that the richest 5 percent pay 59 percent of the taxes and asks, "How much is enough?" Well, the top 5 percent hold 63.5 percent of the wealth, so certainly at least that much. Do some research on wealth distribution in America and then decide if you still think the ultra-rich are getting screwed.
WILL KURTZ, VIA E-MAIL

With tax cuts and loopholes, the rich end up paying smaller percentages than your average citizen. Warren Buffet, for example, pays 25 percent while his maid pays 33 percent. The ultra-rich average 17 percent. Tax reform is about not subsidizing what doesn't need to be subsidized.
GUILLERMO CARREON, VIA E-MAIL

In a study of 13,000 tax-filers making more than $10 million per year, only about 19 percent of that income came from "wages or salaries," so you may want to lighten up on the "hard-earned money" rhetoric. BILL DICKIE, VIA E-MAIL

The top 400 earners in the U.S. averaged an income of $270 million each last year. By paying an extra 3 percent, they would be contributing the same share they did under Clinton — when we had a surplus instead of a deficit. Are these people really "suffering" with an average after-tax income of $221.4 million?
ROBERT ROTTKAMP, VIA E-MAIL

When the top 20 percent control 85 percent of the wealth, it is not unreasonable to require that the top earners pay a "fair share." OLUWASEUN AKAPO, VIA E-MAIL

Debt debate is pure theater

RE: "IT'S UP TO YOU, WASHINGTON": A letter states that no one in Congress will "vote for anything the opposite party is proposing simply because it is being proposed by the opposite party." Not true. In the health care legislation and in the current debt debate, Dems have agreed to many positions previously supported by Republicans. Instead of compromising, the Republicans keep introducing more extreme demands. They are holding our country in gridlock.
HARRY THORN, VIA E-MAIL

The embarrassing and dangerous debt ceiling standoff is happening for one reason only: Everyone from both parties is putting their personal re-election interests ahead of what they know in their hearts is the right thing to do for the good of our country.
MIKE CAVALLONE, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Be leery of someone who attempts to involve you in a game of one-upmanship, especially if money is involved. Chances are that he has experience he isn't telling you about.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Even if you believe you have money to burn, handle your finances with prudence and caution. Deal only with the realities at hand and don't count on luck.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Fence-sitting could get you into a lot of trouble, and we're not just talking sore haunches. Either take a firm position or don't get involved at all.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Avoid talking too freely to a friend about a matter that is supposed to be confidential. Although you can trust this person, she or he might misunderstand and spread the news.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. If you are too easily put upon by friends, a certain pal could palm off a difficult job on you that he or she is avoiding because of the responsibility. Know what you're getting into.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Try to keep the needs and interests of your pals on the same level as your own. If you put your wants ahead of those of others, you will quickly alienate their friendship.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Nothing will be accomplished if you aren't as persevering as you should be in regards to your plans. Throwing in the towel because of a few impediments is folly.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Be wary if you're offered something on the side for going along with a secret deal. It could turn out to be nothing but sugar-coating that will turn sour at a moment's notice.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Going against your better judgment is foolish and you know it; so regardless of your reasons for wanting to do so, back off. When you start ignoring common sense, you're in trouble.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Demanding the impossible from a person on whom you palmed off a difficult job is wrong, and you know it. Give him or her the same space you'd want.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Be wary of a merchandiser who is representing something as a bargain when, in fact, he might be merely dumping it because of some hidden imperfections. Shop wisely.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Frustrations will result if you aren't realistic about the objectives you establish for yourself. If they are too overwhelming or beyond your scope of expertise, you should hire a pro.

With Kolb gone, Eagles instantly upgrade defense

Birds deal backup to Arizona for Rodgers-Cromartie ◐ Team also signs free agent Babin ◐ Stay tuned ...

The phones at the NovaCare Complex rang Thursday. Finally, someone was there to answer on the other end.

When the conversations had ended, the team had signed free agent defensive end Jason Babin and completed a trade sending backup quarterback Kevin Kolb to Arizona for cornerback Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie and a second-round draft pick in 2012.

The Eagles confirmed the Kolb trade around 5 p.m. Thursday with a press release. However, they can't comment on free agent signings until Friday.

Neither move was earth shattering. In fact, both were expected. While the impact won't be seen until they take the field this weekend, it's never too early to take a look at what kind of boost they could give a defense that struggled mightily last season.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Kolb

New to nest

Babin

- Age: 31
- Honors: Selected to 2010 Pro Bowl, 27th pick in 2004
- How he fits in: Projected to start at LDE, opposite RDE Trent Cole
- Stats: Recorded 12.5 sacks in 2010 (30 in 7 seasons)

Rodgers-Cromartie

- Age: 25
- Honors: Selected to 2009 Pro Bowl, 16th pick in 2008
- How he fits in: Projected to start at RCB, opposite LCB Asante Samuel
- Stats: Had three picks in 2010 (13 in 3 seasons)

Defense rests

The Eagles will have a new-look defense in 2011, including at least six new starters. The Eagles were ranked 12th in overall defense last season. Here's our projected starters:

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Babin

- Left defensive end Jason Babin: Out to prove 12.5 sacks was no fluke. Hopefully, he's more than just a rotational player.
- Left defensive tackle Mike Patterson: Production was down in '10. Still an imposing presence and run-stuffer in the middle.
- Right defensive tackle Antonio Dixon: Sky-rocketed up the depth chart after starting 10 games in '10. Organization is very high on the 322-pounder.
- Right defensive end Trent Cole: One of the most underrated ends in the NFL. His reaction to the Babin signing came via Twitter: "The hunting party begins in Philadelphia."
- Weakside linebacker Casey Matthews: He'll get a shot, but he's not his brother. Eagles still may pursue a veteran here.
- Middle linebacker Jamar Chaney: It's his job to lose, and he knows it. Chaney reported to camp in tip-top physical shape.
- Strongside linebacker Moise Fokou: His name tops the depth chart, but he's not long-term solution.
- Left cornerback Asante Samuel: Tackling issues remain, but he's legit playmaker. He was only thrown at 36 times in '10.
- Right cornerback Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie: Similar to Samuel. Ranks fourth among NFL corners with 16 picks in 49 starts since 2008.
- Strong safety Kurt Coleman: Showed promise while filling in at free safety in '10. Said he learned a lot about SS position from Quintin Mikell.
- Free safety Nate Allen: Coming back from ruptured patellar tendon. Says he should be ready for Week 1.

Lincecum beats flu, silences Phils bats

Tim Lincecum isn't sick anymore. However, the Phils bats are ill — and not in the good sense.

The diminutive Giants ace, who missed the first two games of this series due to a flu bug, led San Francisco to a 4-1 win Thursday over the Phillies.

Lincecum didn't have his best stuff but for the second consecutive night, the Phillies bats were silent against the Giants' heralded pitching staff. (They came in with a MLB-leading 3.08 team ERA). Lincecum gave up just three hits in six innings.

Kyle Kendrick pitched decently for the Phillies, giving up three earned runs in 6 1/3 innings. Kendrick also had one of the Phillies' six hits. With the loss, the Phils dropped their first series since the Seattle Mariners took two out of three from Charlie Manuel's squad in June.

The Pirates come in for a three-game set this weekend. Nice story. But the big question on everyone's mind: Will Sunday's trade deadline end with Houston's Hunter Pence in red pinstripes?
